2. Employment services staff: Employment specialists provide only employment services and do not provide mental health case management services. However, employment specialists may also assist clients to solve a range of personal problems that may be barriers to employment.

1	Employment specialists provide employment services less than 60% of the time.
2	Employment specialists provide employment services 60 – 74% of the time.
3	Employment specialists provide employment services 75 - 89% of the time.
4	Employment specialists provide employment services 90 – 95% of the time.
5	Employment specialists provide employment services 96% of the time.

3. Vocational generalists: Each employment specialist carries out all phases of employment service, including intake, engagement, assessment, job placement, job coaching, and follow-along support before step down to less intensive employment support from another MH practitioner. Note: It is not expected that each employment specialist will provide benefits counselling to their clients. Referrals to a highly trained benefits counsellor are in keeping with high fidelity (see Item 12).

1	Employment specialist only provides vocational referral service to vendors and other programs.
2	Employment specialist maintains caseload but refers clients to other programs for vocational services.
3	Employment specialist provides one to four phases of the employment service (e.g. intake, engagement, assessment, job development, job placement, job coaching, and following along supports).
4	Employment specialist provides five phases of employment service but not the entire service.
5	Employment specialist carries out all six phases of employment service (e.g. program intake, engagement, assessment, job development/job placement, job coaching, and follow-along support).

6. Collaboration between employment specialists and key staff members in Government income support and labour market programs. Liaison is important to promote sufficient referrals and to obtain assistance with income support and other return to work assistance. For instance in Australia this will include Centrelink staff, and independent Job Capacity Assessors and Supported Wage Scheme Assessors. In New Zealand this refers to Work and Income staff and PATHS staff. The employment specialists and related program staff have frequent contact for the purposes of identifying potential referrals, discussing shared clients, and obtaining additional assistance.

1	Employment specialists and related program staff have client-related contacts (phone, e-mail, in person) less than quarterly to discuss shared clients and referrals. OR Employment specialists and related program staff do not communicate.
2	Employment specialists and related program staff have client-related contacts (phone, e-

7. Vocational unit: At least 2 full-time employment specialists and a team leader comprise the employment unit. They have weekly client-based group supervision following the supported employment model in which strategies are identified and job leads are shared. They provide coverage for each other's caseload when needed.

1	Employment specialists are not part of a vocational unit.
2	Employment specialists have the same supervisor but do not meet as a group. They do not provide back-up services for each other's caseload.
3	Employment specialists have the same supervisor and discuss clients between each other on a weekly basis. They provide back-up services for each other's caseloads as needed. OR, If a program is in a rural area where employment specialists are geographically separate with one employment specialist at each site, the employment specialists meet 2-3 times monthly with their supervisor by teleconference.
4	At least 2 employment specialists and a team leader form an employment unit with 2-3 regularly scheduled meetings per month for client-based group supervision in which strategies are identified and job leads are shared and discuss clients between each other. They provide coverage for each other's caseloads when needed. OR, If a program is in a rural area where employment specialists are geographically separate with one employment specialist at each site, the employment specialists meet 2-3 times per month with their supervisor in person or by teleconference and mental health practitioners are available to help the employment specialist with activities such as taking someone to work or picking up job applications.

8. Role of employment supervisor: Supported employment unit is led by a supported employment team leader. Employment specialists' skills are developed and improved through outcome-based supervision. All five key roles of the employment supervisor are present.

1	One or none is	Five key roles of the employment supervisor:
	present	 One full-time equivalent (FTE) supervisor is responsible for no more than 10 employment specialists. The supervisor does not have other supervisory responsibilities. (Program leaders supervising fewer than ten employment specialists may spend a percentage of time on other supervisory activities on a prorated basis. For example, an employment supervisor responsible for 4 employment specialists may be devoted to SE supervision half time). Supervisor conducts weekly supported employment supervision designed to review client situations and identify new strategies and ideas to help clients in their work lives. Supervisor communicates with mental health treatment team leaders to ensure that services are integrated, to problem solve programmatic issues (such as referral process, or transfer of followalong to mental health workers) and to be a champion for the value of work. Attends a meeting for each mental health treatment team on a quarterly basis. Supervisor accompanies employment specialists, who are new or having difficulty with job development, in the field monthly to improve skills by observing, modelling, and giving feedback on skills, e.g., meeting employers for job development. Supervisor reviews current client outcomes with employment specialists and sets goals to improve program performance at least quarterly.

9. Zero exclusion criteria: All clients interested in working have access to supported employment services, regardless of job readiness factors, substance abuse, symptoms history of violent behaviour, cognitive impairments, treatment non-adherence, and personal presentation. These apply during supported employment services too. Employment specialists offer to help with another job when one has ended, regardless of the reason that the job ended or number of jobs held. If Government Income Support or Labour market programs have screening criteria, the mental health agency does not use them to exclude anybody. Clients are not screened out formally or informally. See the Fidelity Review Manual for how to score this item when the employment specialist caseload is full and no places are currently available.

1	There is a formal policy to exclude clients due to lack of job readiness (e.g., substance abuse, history of violence, low level of functioning, etc.) by employment staff, case managers, or other practitioners.
2	Most clients are unable to access supported employment services due to perceived lack of job readiness (e.g., substance abuse, history of violence, low level of functioning, etc.).
3	Some clients are unable to access supported employment services due to perceived lack of job readiness (e.g., substance abuse, history of violence, low level of functioning, etc.).
4	No evidence of exclusion, formal or informal. Referrals are not solicited by a wide variety of sources. Employment specialists offer to help with another job when one has ended, regardless of the reason that the job ended or number of jobs held.
5	All clients interested in working have access to supported employment services. Mental

14. Ongoing, work-based vocational assessment: Initial vocational assessment occurs over 2-3 sessions and is updated with information from work experiences in competitive jobs. A vocational profile form that includes information about preferences, experiences, skills, current adjustment, strengths, personal contacts, etc, is upgraded with each new job experience. Aims at problem solving using environmental assessments and consideration of reasonable accommodations. Sources of information include the client, treatment team, clinical records and with the client's permission, information from family members and previous employers.

1	Vocational evaluation is conducted prior to job placement with emphasis on office-based assessments, standardized tests, intelligence tests, work samples.
2	Vocational assessment may occur through a stepwise approach that includes: prevocational work experiences (e.g., work units in a day program), volunteer jobs, or set aside jobs (e.g., agency-run businesses, sheltered workshop jobs, affirmative businesses, enclaves).
3	Employment specialists assist clients in finding competitive jobs directly without systematically reviewing interests, experiences, strengths etc. and do not routinely analyse job loss (or job problems) for lessons learned.
4	Initial vocational assessment occurs over 2-3 sessions in which interests and strengths are explored. Employment specialists help clients learn from each job experience and also work with the treatment team to analyse job loss, job problems and job successes. They do not document these lessons learned in the vocational profile, OR The vocational profile is not updated on a regular basis.
5	Initial vocational assessment occurs over 2-3 sessions and information is documented on a
